SocialChorus Helps Communicators Keep Employees Informed During an Acquisition

An IT giant faced a serious challenge: the pending acquisition of two companies in fewer than 100 days, effectively doubling their employee count. Both the speed and scale of the acquisition made effectively communicating the changes a tough task.

Using SocialChorus, they seamlessly coordinated all change communications for both acquisitions and reached over 90% of their newly combined workforce. The team identified key segments that would be most affected and delivered critical, specific information to each group.

These messages were then communicated in real time to all the impacted employees.

The end result? Both of the acquired companies integrated 2x faster than expected. Employees from each company received the crucial information they needed during the acquisition, which led to a smoother transition for everyone.
